JEAN ALIX PIERRE

APRN | FNP-BC | Family Medicine

Jean Alix Pierre is a foreign-trained physician, Board-Certified Family Nurse Practitioner, and prospective Psychiatric-Mental Health Nurse Practitioner (PMHNP) with over a decade of comprehensive experience bridging direct patient care, acute hospital medicine, and health system operations.

His foundational medical education culminated in earning his medical degree from Universidad Tecnológica de Santiago in 2011. He subsequently served as Medical Director for DASH Clinical in Haiti from 2013 to 2018, where he exercised executive oversight across multiple outpatient centers, ensured strict regulatory compliance under Ministry of Health frameworks, directed interprofessional clinical staff, and expanded healthcare access initiatives throughout underserved regional populations.

Upon transitioning into the United States healthcare framework, Mr. Pierre expanded his clinical scope through nursing education, earning his Associate of Science in Nursing from EDP University and his Master of Science in Nursing as a Family Nurse Practitioner from Miami Regional University. His acute-care bedside tenure includes serving as a Registered Nurse across high-acuity Emergency Department, Telemetry, and Progressive Care Units (PCU) in premier health systems across Florida and New York.

Currently practicing in urgent care and community health environments, Mr. Pierre specializes in complex clinical evaluation, multi-system chronic disease management, advanced diagnostic interpretation, and evidence-based pharmacotherapy.

Fluent in English, Spanish, French, and Haitian Creole, he seamlessly combines clinical precision, health operations management, and deep transcultural competence to optimize population health outcomes and advance clinical excellence.
